The Marin County Aviation Commission is hosting a community workshop to present background information, discuss opportunities, and solicit input on the Gnossov Field airport, Marin County's only public airport. Please join us to find out about the airport, its operations and future plans, and provide your input. The workshop will feature a presentation and then move to three separate stations where more detailed information will be available and your comments and suggestions will be captured. The stations will cover current airport operations, the runway extension project, and the capital plan for future improvements.

Workshop comments and ideas will be captured in a summary report to be presented to the Board of Supervisors through the Aviation Commission. Although the workshop report will be used to inform the Board and county staff, there is no pending action as a result of this workshop nor is this workshop associated with any environmental review.
