

How I Feel On Love

To me, the love I have is myself. I was in love with someone, and I messed it up. It was a couple of months ago when he said it was over. And when he told me, quote on quote, he “has a female.”

I felt my adrenaline go up. My eyes started tearing up and my insides felt like they were melting.

There is a quote I’ve always stuck with, and it goes, “your parents always tell you don’t do drugs, stay away from drugs.”

But the thing is, love is the most messed up drug of ‘em all. This quote is a quote I feel, because love is the feeling you can feel, but it’s also the worst pain you feel.

To be honest, I don’t want to love again because people might think you’re a punk for saying I’m scared to love. But it’s how I feel and I’m not holding it back, especially in The Beat.

-Karina

From The Beat: We can just imagine the heartbreak in that exact moment. We have all felt that type of stinging pain and we feel you! Love can definitely resemble a drug, and you can get addicted. We are here for all of your feelings!